

Mrs. Ophelia counts sheep to fall asleep:
one, two, three, and so on. As soon as she gets to eighteen, she's fast asleep.

Poor Ramona, sheep number 19, never gets a turn.

Can she figure out a way to jump over the fence into Mrs. Ophelia's dreams?

SHEEP NUMBER 19

TICK TOCK

Mrs. Ophelia has a hard time falling asleep at night. She tosses and turns for what feels like ages.

So every night, Mrs. Ophelia counts sheep.
Because that's the only thing that's guaranteed to get Mrs. Ophelia snoring: counting sheep.

Every night, Mrs. Ophelia starts counting: one sheep, two sheep, three, four... And so on, until she's counted eighteen sheep. As soon as Mrs. Ophelia gets to number 18... she's out like a light!

Every night, Ramona the sheep wishes she could get a turn.

She doesn't even get to bleat softly to help lull Mrs. Ophelia to sleep.

She doesn't get to jump over the fence...

Because it just so happens that Ramona is, to her great and horrible dismay...

... sheep number 19.

So night after night, Ramona the sheep hatches a new plan to try to get a turn.

Once, she disguised herself as a sheep dog. But she got caught.

Another time she tried to win Florinda's number 13 in a game of cards. But she lost.

One night, she tried to secure the number one spot in line by scaring everyone else away with loads of VERY stinky farts.

But no luck. The other sheep just pulled on their old gas masks without missing a beat.

Once, she tried painting over the 1 on her number 19.

But Belinda the sheep, the real number 9, was furious and told poor Ramona off.
