APRIL'S JOURNEY

Francesc Rovira · Annamaria Piccione · Luis Amavisca

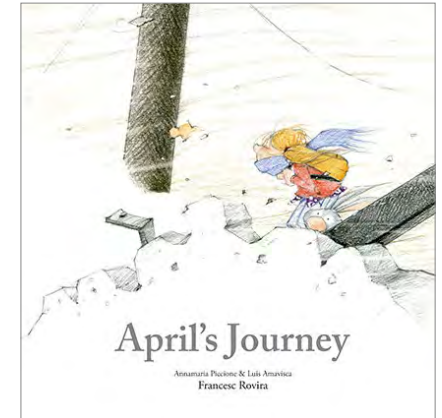

values

April runs away from the ruins and loneliness left by the war in search of a new home. She carries with her only her stuffed animal, Coco, and her backpack, full of memories.

After walking through rain and snow, she meets another child, Julio. Together, they climb mountains and sleep in abandoned houses, until they reach the sea. Never giving up hope, they embark on a dangerous journey towards a new beginning.

A book to talk about a reality that is unfortunately all too common: how wars force children, who are alone, to leave their homes and travel towards the unknown.

While fleeing the destruction and loneliness of bombs and war, April meets Julio, another child who has lost everything. They are accompanied only by their stuffed animals and their backpacks, full of memories.

PIG DREAMS

Margarita del Mazo · Guridi

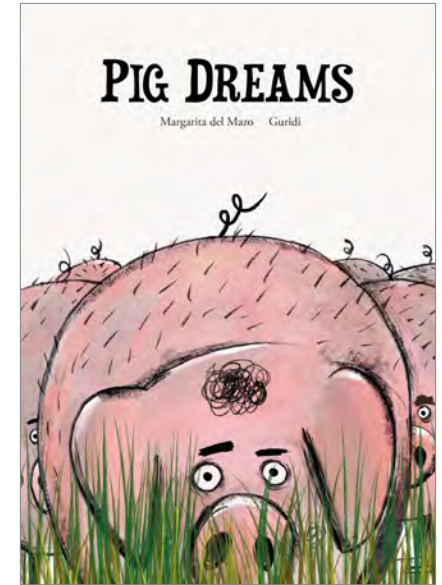

humor

The pigs live happily and peacefully together but they can't help wondering why only sheep get to be counted by children trying to fall asleep. Why can't children count pigs instead?

One day, a particularly ambitious pig decides to discuss the situation with a sheep, who makes it quite clear that only sheep are qualified to do the job. But this team of pigs has other ideas and starts to put their plans in action! Will they be able to help children fall asleep as well as the sheep?

Everyone knows that when you can't get to sleep, you count sheep. But what happens when pigs decide they want to be the ones children count when they try to fall asleep?
